Catholic Teachers Strike Archdiocese Of New York

(c) N.Y. Times News Service NEW YORK - The federation of Catholic Teachers equal work" and the association voted Sunday to strike the 329 maintaining that it does not schools of the Archdiocese of have enough money for that. New York Monday morning. It will be the nation's first such major work stoppage by parochial school teachers. Despite the union's stand, however, officials of the archdiocese, which covers Manhattan, Staten Island, the Bronx and seven upstate counties, said all elementary and secondary schools will be open for "uninterrupted in-struction" throughout the strike.

The historic vote, which was 481 to 198 in favor of striking came at 2:35 p.m. in the jammed Windsor Room of the Commodore Hotel where negotiations had broken off just two hours previously.

It followed more than five months of unsuccessful contract talks between the union, which bargains for all the archdiocese's 2,800 lay teachers and the Association of Catholic Schools.

The lay teachers, whose numbers have been growing steadily in recent years, now comprise a majority of the parochial schools' faculty; the rest are nuns or other religious. The major unresolved issue is the question of pay parity between elementary and high school teachers with the union demanding "equal pay for

The talks broke off about 12:30 p.m. when, as one negotiator put it "it was obvious we were totally deadlocked. The gap was so wide there was no way of reaching a compromise."

Thirty minutes later the union meeting began with many members in an obviously militant mood and many others concerned over a possible lack of support for a strike among the union's 1,400 dues-paying members and the non-unionized

"We hope our strike is short," union president Barry F. Ryan told the throng of teachers, "but we are prepared for a long one." He said pickets would appear at many schools at 7 a.m. Monday.

Ryan urged the parents of the system's 144,000 pupils to keep them away from school for their 'health and safety." He predicted the strike would be most effective in Manhattan, the Bronx and parts of Westchester County. "We're weaker upstate," he admitted.

The other counties involved are Rockland, Duchess, Ulster, Putnam, Orange and Sullivan. The union is local 2092 of the American Federation of Teachers, AFL-CIO.

Q.-Where can I get some answers on details and interpretation of President Nixon's Phase Two Economic Program? P.W.M.

A.—Beginning Monday, Nov. 15, Internal Revenue Service officers assumed responsibilities formerly assigned to the Office of Emergency Preparedness under the President's Economic Stabilization Program. Within guidelines issued by the Cost of Living Council, the Price Commission and the Pay Board, IRS will act on requests for interpretations and on appeals.

In addition the Service will continue to provide information, investigate complaints and monitor compliance with stabilization guidelines. The IRS will handle enforcement activities in connection with the largest numerical segment of the economy - those businesses not required to report their increases to the Pay Board and Price Commission. The IRS will also conduct fact-finding investigations for the Board and Commission. In Warren, the IRS office is located in the Post Office building.

Q.-Why is it that the names of juveniles involved in criminal activities do not appear in the newspaper? H.M.S.

A.—This is governed by a ruling handed down by the Pennsylvania Court Judge Commission in a publication that delineates the handling of juvenile cases. The local court judge is explicitly directed to take necessary county-wide steps to prohibit indiscriminate publication by newspapers of juveniles' names. The various police agencies, therefore, do not release names of those under 18 to the news media.

Juvenile court sessions are closed and those who work with juveniles in the probation department keep all information strictly confidential. The only exception as to release and use of the name of a juvenile is when that individual is charged as an adult, which seldom happens unless there have been repeated and serious offenses. The principal aim of those agencies dealing with juvenile offenders is hopefully to educate and keep them from committing future

Israel Names Elazar Armed Forces Chief

JERUSALEM (AP) - With war talk rumbling through the Middle East, Israel named a popular 46-year-old officer on Sunday to assume command of the armed forces. Maj. Gen. David Elazar becomes chief of staff Jan. 1, replacing Lt. Gen Haim Bar-Lev, a Cabinet communique

At the same time, Israel declared Egyptian President Anwar Sadat's latest speech combined "a military threat with political extortion."

In an official statement, Foreign Minister Abba Eban warned that Sadat "can bring noth- course, not yield to military inand region" with military threats.

He was referring to the Egyptian leader's statement Saturday that "the time for battle has come, there is no more hope."

The Middle East News Agency quoted Sadat as urging his troops, during a tour of Suez Canal positions, "to be fe-rocious in battle, to prove to the world that we are a fighting people who know how to defend our dignity and honor."

Eban said: "We shall, of ing but disaster to his nation timidation or to political pressure."

He called on Egypt to negotiate peace with Israel and 'stop the public bombast." Sadat's speech tied in with the threats must be taken seriously. Elazar, the new chief of staff, won esteem and popularity for his five-year term as chief of the northern command. In this capacity, he ran a day-to-day battle against Arab guerrillas on three fronts-the Lebanese, Syrian and Jordanian borders. In 1969 he was boosted to chief of operations—the No. 2 position in the Israeli military hierararchy. Bar-Lev is expected to be given a ministerial position. He has served as chief of staff since Jan. 1, 1968, when he took refusing to budge unless Egypt over from Yitzhak Rabin, who Bar-Lev was known as "the general of the war of attrition"-a reference to the bitter Suez Canal fighting from late 1967 until the U.S.-initiated cease-fire of August 1970.

The string of defenses Israel built along the canal to protect its troops from Egyptian artillery barrages was unofficially dubbed the Bar-Lev Line.

Before the Cabinet met, Israeli officials had accused Sadat of "heightening war hys-teria" and said he had left Egypt "little way out of a con-

The officials noted that President Hafez el-Assid of Syria also visited Syrian army installations. They said this was another step aimed at increasing tension.

"Sadat's declaration further strengthens the fact that more and more people believe this time he means businesswhether we like it or not, and whether he likes it or not," one source said.

A source close to the Israeli foreign ministry said: "We want peace to continue, but the decision is not entirely in our hands. We have no doubt about

U.S. advisers said the drive is aimed at raiding staging areas from which elements of three North Vietnamese divisions could attack South Vietnamese bases on the highway, about 90 miles northwest of Saigon.

Initial reports said more than 5,000 South Vietnamese troops were involved in the opening thrust. The number was expected to increase.

There were no immediate reports of significant ground contact, but South Vietnamese air strikes killed 40 enemy soldiers west of the town of Krek, officers in the field said.

Officers said the operation could last up to 30 days, depending on what the South Vietnamese find.

Scores of U.S. helicopters and advisers moved into Tay Ninh to support the operation. Tay Ninh, 55 miles northwest of Saigon, is the forward command post for South Vietnamese operations into eastern Cambodia.

South Vietnamese field commanders said they anticipated the new operation also would relieve enemy pressure on Phnom Penh and the 20,000 Cambodian troops battling North Vietnamese and Viet Cong on the northeastern front in Cambodia.

Communist-led forces who have fought their way to within 10 miles of the Cambodian capital are known to be resupplied from bases in the border region.

The command said four Navy A7 Corsairs based on a carrier in the Tonkin Gulf struck at the site Sunday afternoon after North Vietnamese guns fired on an unarmed Navy reconaissance plane.

It was the 80th "protective reaction" strike by U.S. planes over North Vietnam this year, and the fifth within the last eight days.

The command said results of the strike were not known and that there was no damage to the four attack bombers or the reconnaissance plane, which apparently was on a photo mission over North Vietnam.

Vinh is a major North Vietnamese city about 145 miles north of the demilitarized zone and a hub of five supply routes. The site was eight miles west of the coast, the command said. U.S. headquarters also reported three more B52 raids in the northwest corner of South Vietnam along the Laos border. The big bombers struck onehalf to two miles from the Lacs frontier, aiming their bombs at bunker and storage areas and antiaircraft gun sites.

South Vietnamese headquarters said its propeller-driven Skyraiders attacked North Vietnamese positions near Chrum in eastern Cambodia and pilots claimed 40 North Vietnamese killed. The claim was not confirmed by a body count on the ground.

The United States got sover-eignty over the islands in 1856. Finch's group already has visited Peru, Ecuador, Argentina and Brazil. It returns to Washington Thursday.

Finch meets Tuesday with Mexican President Luis Echeverria to discuss the few problems between the United States and Mexico.

Echeverria is expected to bring up the 10 per cent sur-charge on U.S. imports and Mexican efforts to get that surcharge removed.

Finch also is expected to discuss plans for a state visit by Nixon to Mexico, tentatively planned for mid-1972. Echeverria invited him to Mexico a

The subject of the salinity of the Colorado River also is sure to come up. Mexico feels the heavy salinity of water passed on to her country damages agriculture production in the Mexicali Valley.

Finch may also bring up Mexican vegetable and fruit exports to the United States. Florida farmers are complaining that imports of Mexican strawberries and tomatoes have ruined their hopes of raising these crops for a profit.

Wide Differences Of Opinion On National Health Program

Christian Democrats Reject 'People's Assembly' In Chile about 150 members.

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) -The Christian Democrats. Chile's biggest opposition party, rejected on Sunday government plans to dissolve Congress and establish a "People's Assembly." The decision makes a nationwide plebiscite on the controversial issue almost inevi-

The plan was presented to the present Congress two weeks ago by the leftist Popular-Unity coalition government of President Salvador Allende as part of a sweeping constitutional reform package. The proposal would dissolve the present 50-member Senate and 150-member lower Chamber of Deputies and replace it with a unicameral congress of

The government, which includes Communists and Socialists, claims the one-house congress would be more efficient and faster in passing laws.

The Christian Democrats and right wing parties claim the proposal is only a ruse for new congressional elections to increase the government's strength in the legislature. Allende has pledged to "lead Chile down the road to socialism" while respecting the country's democratic traditions. This means submitting to legislation his proposals to transform Chile into a socialist state. The half dozen left-wing parties in the coalition government, however, control only 91 seats in Democrats and the right control 107. Two seats are vacant.

The Christian Democrats and the right want a plebiscite. They feel the troubled economic situation in Chile after a year of Allende's government will insure that Chileans vote against it as a sign of dissatisfaction. This would be a serious blow to Allende's pres-

Shortages of beef and other foodstuffs as well as various consumer goods in recent months have aroused increasing complaints about the government's economic policies of trying to place production and distribution of essential items in the hands of the state.

WASHINGTON (AP) -Month-long hearings by the House Ways and Means Committee have defined but in no sense bridged the wide differences of opinion to be resolved if Congress is to enact a national health program. The hearings have ended the issue now moves to the congressional back burner until next year. But that is an election year, which makes it all the more likely that the lawmakers will make a real effort to push through legislation to make comprehensive health services more readily available to all Americans in an era of spiraling

After hundreds of thousands of words of testimony by some 200 witnesses, the options remain in what they were when the committee began considering proposals for national health insurance. The basic questions are:

-How much health service should be provided in a national -Will the health-insurance industry remain in the picture? -What can be done to hold down costs that have been soaring well beyond the rate of general inflation? -Can the supply of doctors and other health specialists and of physical facilities be increased and better distributed? There are many plans before the committee, but essentially only two approaches: -A universal government-operated system, financed by taxation, including special payroll levies. -An expansion of private health-insurance coverage to with the government picking up the bill for the needy. If past performance is a guide, the Ways and Means Committee will write its own ments of various ones before it. But the sharp divergence between the two basic approaches appears to present as tough a challenge as the committee and its compromise-adept chairman, Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., have ever faced. One possibility has been men-plan, picking and choosing ele-

tioned, as an extremely tentative suggestion. Certain specified coverages, such as protection against catastrophically expensive illness and perhaps services to very young children might be marked off as government responsibilities and a government-encouraged private in-surance system be developed for the rest of the field.

In any case, an enormous amount of work for the staffs of virtually universal proportions the committee and the Health, Education and Welfare Department must be done before next spring, when the committee is expected to get down to the job of trying to construct a bill.

Orphaned Teen-agers

Fed Up With Spotlight

ESSEXVILLE, Mich. (AP) -Six orphaned teen-agers living together as a family say they're fed up with being in the spotlight. They're even a little tired of people's charity.

The Gregory family, four girls and two boys whose widowed mother died last December, say they would like more privacy, have enough money and are not the story-book family they're made out to be.

The teen-agers drew national attention when a probate judge ruled they could remain together as long as one of the three older girls-Jill and Judy, 19year-old twins, or Jann, 18stayed home each night to supervise the younger children.

The Gregorys immediately became known as the family which didn't want to split up. Local merchants rallied to their aid with donations. There were offers for television programs. The community of Hamton Township began looking out for them.

The effect, the children say, was that their lives got pushed out of shape.

"I know it really doesn't sound like we appreciate the things people did," said Jill. "We do though. But we like our privacy. We'd like more.

'Our business is everybody else's," she went on. "If we want to sit in the dark and watch TV by ourselves, we have to turn on a light because of what people might think."

Her sister Jann said the whole idea of a "stay together" family was out of focus. "It was in the paper that we didn't want to split up, Jann explained. We never said that. It never occurred to us. "There were so many of us anybody would have been nuts to take us." The teen-agers say their lives are quite ordinary. The three older girls work: Judy is a beautician, Jill a waitress and Jan a hospital kitchen worker. The others, Jackie, 17, Jay, 15, and Jon, 14, still attend school. The family is separated most of the day. The youths have their own interests and the normal share of arguments.

Body Discovered

CRESSON, Pa. (AP) — Hunters have discovered the badly decomposed body of a Clearfield County woman missing from Cresson State Hospital since May 6 in a strip mine about two miles east of this Cambria County Community, state police said Sunday.

Troopers identified the victim as Betty Jane Heeman, 37, of Clearfield, who walked away from the hospital where she had been a patient. Authorities said there was no evidence of foul play.

Vasectomies To Etchings Auctioned At ACLU Benefit

SEATTLE, Washington (AP)

— The bidding opened for a vasectomy. At first the crowd of about 150 persons was silent. "It's not necessarily for yourself or your spouse. Maybe it's for a friend, a very special Christmas gift," pleaded auctioneer Michael Rosen, a Seattle attorney and state executive director of the American Civil Liberties Union.

Rosen and John Junker, a University of Washington criminal law professor, called for the bids Saturday night for a Seattle ACLU benefit auction which drew only a few more persons than there were donated items up for bidding.

The bidding rose to $30 for the voluntary male sterilization operation, which Rosen said usually costs $125, when a man's voice rose in mock protest: "Why is it the women who are doing all the bidding?"

The vasectomy went for $50-"the full operation for half the price, better than the other way around," Rosen said.

Ten small etchings by a local artist brought prices ranging from $10 to $20, and Jane Kowals successfully bid $11 to have 12 letters "drafted and typed and sent to Congress on your favorite issues," as the auction catalog described it. "You don't even have to think about them,' Junker said.

A year's supply of birth con-trol pills went for $15, drafting of a will for $20, three hours of psychotherapy for $35, insertion of an intrauterine contraceptive device for $10 and a Chinese dinner for two on a houseboat for $35. No one bid on "a noncontested divorce-no counseling please, you should really hate each other.'

Other items include macrobiotic cooking lessons, an airplane ride, a mushroom-hunting trip next spring, five songs by a soprano "at a meeting of your choice," Louisiana corn bread and a one-hour discussion on Women's Liberation.

There also were more conventional items: food and dinners; homemade clothing and furniture; painting, sketches and photographic prints, and services ranging from baby-sit-

To Keep Pa. Milkmen's Jobs Milk Price Control Needed

PHILADELPHIA (AP) -William Kaiser, president of Teamsters Local 463, has predicted that 1,000 milkman's jobs would be lost in Philadelphia and thousands more across the state if the state Milk Marketing Board is stripped of its powers to regulate prices.

Kaiser also claimed Saturday that smaller daries would be forced out of business if milkprice controls are eliminated.

"Some supermarkets would use milk as a 'loss leader' to attract customers to their stores," Kaiser said.

He added that "when competition is the way they (stores) want it, up would go prices again. That's the way it has been in other states when milk commissions were abolished."

From childhood we have been taught to revere the framers of the Constitution. They have been represented to us as deep-thinking men with the ability to see far beyond their times in matters concerning the functioning of a democratic form of government. We have credited them with a great achievement in laying the foundation on which has been built a nation of free and prosperous people.

Yet how often in the course of our hectic modern lives do we take time to consider just how wise and farseeing these men were, or how the precepts they endorsed, if followed today, would change the trend of current history? Or how the men closely associated with these precepts reacted during the early history of the nation when faced with problems similar to those we face today?

Madison, in writing to Jefferson in 1798, said, "Perhaps it is a universal truth that the loss of liberty at home is to be charged to provisions against dangers, real or pretended, from abroad." Are we fully aware of how the fear of communism has robbed us of personal liberties over the past couple of decades?

Or does the wisdom of John Quincy Adams impress a message on our minds as he said, "Wherever the standard of freedom and independence has been or shall be unfurled, there will America's heart be, her benediction, her prayers. But she goes not abroad in search of monsters to destroy. She is the well-wisher of freedom and independence of all. She is the champion and vindicator only of her own. She will recommend the general cause by the continence of her voice, and by the benignant sympathy of her example.

"She well knows that by once enlisting under her banners other than her own, were they even the banners of foreign independence, she would involve herself beyond the power of extrication, in all the wars of interest and intrigue, of individual avarice, envy and ambition, which assume the colors and usurp the standards of freedom. The fundamental maxims of her policy would change from liberty to force.

"She may become the dictatress of the world; she would no longer be the ruler of her own spirit."

Apparently, a most searching question we should be asking ourselves is whether or not America is holding to the course directed by the framers of the Constitution, supported by the reasoning of our founding fathers, -- or are we drifting astray? And above all, we should answer this question honestly.

State's Watchdogs Really Watchdogging

By Mason Denison

HARRISBURG -- The massive North Office Building in the Capitol Complex on Capitol Hill here in Harrisburg has been undergoing extensive alterations for close to two years.

All the time the workmen were ripping out walls, tearing up flooring, and generally renovating the huge structure, the Public Utility Commission stubbornly maintained its quarters in the building.

Curiously though,other governmental agencies moved out to temporary quarters while the renovating proceeded -- but not

As a result, the contractors had to work around the Public Utility Commission, shifting its operations as necessary while the alterations went on. But the contractors tolerated the situation -- at a

At a recent meeting of the General State Authority, one of the items on the agenda was a request for approval of a bill for $353,700 submitted by the contractor because the North Office Building had not been vacated per the contractual requirements and the contractors were put to the extra expense as a result.

Auditor General Robert P. Casey, a member of the General State Authority Board, wanted to know if the contractor's bill was not the result of the PUC's refusal to move out while the renovations were made.

He was told by GSA Executive Director Robert (Pop) Jones that this was so.

Mr. Casey then asked what would have happened had the PUC moved out while the alterations were made to the North Office Building and the reply was that it would have been necessary to pay rent estimated at about $200,000 annually.

Mr. Casey said that if it had been rent, it would have been an operating expense and thus could have been charged back to the public utilities the PUC monitors. Again, Mr. Jones agreed with Mr. Casey's

The Auditor General then suggested that an attempt should be made to recover the $353,700 from the utilities in the form of increased assessments, as permitted by

Why should the taxpayers be stuck with Public Utility Commission refused to vacate the North Office Building during the period of alterations? The utilities, in his view, should pay that bill, not the

The Situation In 1972

By Russell Baker

Raiford.

WASHINGTON - Let's see if we can sort out the situation in the 1972 Presidential campaign, which is now in its final year:

1. Must the election be held?-If President Nixon made the freeze applicable to campaign spending, nobody could afford an election and it could be called off. Unfortunately, the President is unlikely to invoke the freeze because he has millions of dollars in campaign funds earmarked for the television industry. If he doesn't spend them, television will collapse and there will be no televised football for the President to watch on dull winter weekends in the White House. The only way the President can make White House weekends bearable is by going ahead with the campaign. 2. Democrats — There have been many Democratic candidates for the nomination and will probably be many more before Election Day. They all have beautiful teeth, which is the basic qualification for the Presidency. Senator Muskie's teeth are highly favored by the professionals at this writing, but many give a slight edge to Senator Kennedy because of his famous incisors.

3. What's wrong with Senator McGovern's teeth?-Senator McGovern's teeth glisten just as splendidly as the next candidate's when it's time to smile, but he talas too much about the Vietnam war, which takes the shine off his teeth. Americans do not want to hear about the Jackson. He is the only candidate in any man is telegenic. Their teeth are just party who can show as many teeth in a single smile as Senator Kennedy.

6. Would Senator Jackson be a fun President?-He would be the first President ever called "Scoop." This gives him a slight lead over Senator Humphrey, who would merely be the first President ever called "Hubert."

7. Interesting fact—Lyndon B. Johnson is still constitutionally eligible to serve another term as President. So is Harry Truman. A Truman-Johnson ticket would be the most interesting ticket the Democrats could nominate, although many veteran political observers contend that it would be the only interesting ticket the Democrats could nominate.

8. Convention riots-The likeliest causes of riots at the 1972 conventions are (1) the possibility that President Nixon may try to drop Vice-President Agnew from the Republican ticket and (2) the Democratic party.
9. John Lindsay — John Lindsay,

Eugene McCarthy, George Wallace and Pete McCloskey would also like to be President, as would Nelson Rockefeller. Birch Bayh, Harold Hughes, Fred Harris and almost everybody else except Mayor Daley, for whom the job would represent a step down, and Senator Barry Goldwater, who shows surprisingly good sense now and then.

11. The Nixon campaign-President Nixon will wage his usual strenuous flying campaign. In its course he will make campaign appearances in all 116 countries, including the United States, where he will also be seen simultaneously and more or less constantly on all television networks. He will point with pride to John Connally, David Eisenhower, Nguyen Van Thieu, Chou En-lai and the Supreme Court, and he will tell us that he knows how to end the war but cannot tell us until after he is re-elected.

12. The Democratic campaign-The Democrats will try to destroy President Nixon's morale by pointing out that if he wins re-election in 1972 he will never be eligible to run for President again.

13. Length of campaign-President Nixon has been running since 1952, although he did not start the 1972 campaign until 1969. Senator Humphrey is the only Democrat who has been running for the same length of time. For those of us not running, the remaining eleven and a half months will last an average of seventeen years. Since President Nixon and Senator Humphrey have been running longest. they will undoubtedly be the nominees.

By James Reston

WASHINGTON — Two strong opinions about America are now widely held and fiercely defended in the capital. The first is that the major threat to the security of the nation still lies in the rising military, and particularly the naval, power of the Soviet Union. And the second is that the major threat lies in the internal divisions of the nation and in the social, political and economic derangement of an overpopulated world.

On the proposition that both these threats exist and must be dealt with simultaneously there is a wide area of agreement, but on the hard practical questions of priorities and puposes, how much money for carriers and how much for poverty, there is wide and deep disagreement.

This is a fundamental and philosophical conflict, which divides sincere and thoughtful men and women, some of whom cannot resolve the matter in their own minds. For example, a distinguished member of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, deeply worried that Soviet missile and naval power was now tipping the balance of power against the United States, nevertheless observed privately the other day that he was less concerned about the nation's ability to maintain an effective balance of power in the world than he was about its ability to maintain a balance of confidence and trust at home.

In short, no matter how anxious he was about the expansion of Soviet power into the Mediterranean and the oceans of the world, he was even more anxious about our ability as a people to hold together and find the unity and will to use what power we had in anything except a direct attack upon the territory and other obvious vital interests of the United States.

What President Nixon has done in the face of this terrible dilemma is what most politicians would do. He has compromised with it. He has cut back the military budget a bit, and cut back the nation's commitments in Vietnam, and elsewhere in the underdeveloped world, and at the same time he has increased the budget for health, education, and welfare at home.

But the defense appropriations bill passed by the House the other day, still provided $71 billion in new funds for the Pentagon - not enough to meet the requests of the President, let alone the Joint Chiefs of Staff, but still large enough to limit what was left over to deal with the dangerous human problems at home and

In fundamental arguments like this the advantage is almost always with the side that favors dealing with the immediate and the tangible problem. The new Soviet missiles and naval vessels are a fact, not a theory. The movement of Soviet power in the Mediterranean and Soviet influence in India are facts. There is a shift in the world balance of power, and the trend is not favorable to the United States. Still, important as this is, the United States retains equality or superiority in most military fields, and the threat from non-military trends at home and in the world seem to me, at least, to be more alarming than the threat of Moscow's growing fleets of ships and missiles. There is now in the world, not only a confrontation of military power, but a confrontation of societies, and the state of our society at the moment, or so it seems here, is more disturbing than the state of our military defenses. Few people on either side of the debate here would deny that we are a divided people with an unbalanced economy, and what is more important, an unbalanced view of ourselves and how we should be reacting to one another, to our allies, our adversaries, and the hungry majority of the human race.

On the philosophical ground, we need not fear the power of the communist idea, for as Archibald MacLeish observed in this week's Saturday Review, it has turned into the Stalinist reality — the ultimate negation of belief in man, "police state at home and imperial legions abroad."

Still, the American purpose in the world is very dim and confused these days, even in our own minds, and maybe a restatement or affirmation of that purpose is the first order of business, even in military terms.

For the danger in the Soviet military program is not primarily that they may use their missiles and submarines on us, but that they may use their new sea-borne missiles as instruments of political influence from the Mediterranean to the Sea of Japan. And without more unity and sense of purpose than we now have after Vietnam, it is hard to imagine any President in the next few years, no matter how many weapons at his command, risking even rational foreign adventures with a divided electorate at his back. MacLeish reminds us that Lincoln.

speaking at Independence Hall in Philadelphia on his way to take the oath of the presidency, wondered what great principle or idea it was that had created the Union in the first place and held it together for so long.

It was not, Lincoln felt, "the mere matter of separation from the motherland. It was something else, he thought, something more, "something in the Declaration, giving liberty not alone to the people of this country but hope to the world, . . . something which gave promise that in due time the weights should be lifted from the shoulders of mankind. . .

This was the American proposition, as Lincoln saw it: That the survival of the republic and the Union depended not on chauvinism or military power, but on the power of that revolutionary commitment to the liberty of mankind.

Well, nothing seems more alien to the present mood of the nation than this particular proposition. Yet even in these days of rising isolation and protectionism, the old American affirmation is at least worth remembering. For if there is a clear and present danger in the internal and external disorder of the contemporary world, it may be better to go back to first principles while we are ordering up more couldn't believe it. He begged her to tell entire professional life, he would never present a bill to a policeman.

The ear problem was simple. A few drops of warm mild oil, a cotton swab, and the child stopped crying. The fee was $2. Dr. McCormick went on to great things. He helped the Sisters of St. Joseph of Newark to buy the old Phelps Manor Estate in Teaneck and fashion a hospital. In fact, he stood in the doorway when Holy Name Hospital opened. A nun spoke McCormick's mind: "Wouldn't it be great if the first case was to bring a life into the world rather than have one leave it?" Within two hours, a young man, panting with nervousness, helped a young wife from a rickety car. She was in labor. McCormick dated the health and growth of the hospital by watching that baby for many years. He became chief of surgery and administrator. McCormick was the coinventer of spinal anesthesia. Down through the years, policemen came in with heart disease, or pneumonia, or a lead slug in the chest, and Frank McCormick worked as hard as though he expected to Police departments heaped high honors on him, a solid gold shield proclaimed him a life member of the P.B.A. One policeman, badly wounded, ran up a tab of $4,000. Frank McCormick gave the bill to the cop on his way out. It was stamped: "Paid in Full. Frank McCormick."

In later years, he fathered some fine surgeons. One Sunday morning, a cop who was treasurer of the local P.B.A. hanged himself in his living room closet because he had taken $400 from the funds for food for his wife and children.

I stopped by Holy Name Hospital and told Frank McCormick. He was old, gray, sturdy as a rock behind rimless glasses. Suddenly I saw them: real, live tears. "Why didn't he come to me and get the money? Didn't he know he's worth more than four hundred?'

I said: "How about helping the wife and the children?" We put cardboard beer containers in every tavern and store. They carried a photo of the cop and stated: "He helped your kid; now help his." The widow got over $6,000. McCormick died, the dedicated doctor to Somehow it took away a vital part of the service, for every man was proud of his wartime unit and proud of its decorations as well as his own.

If the American military authorities are seriously looking forward to an allvolunteer service, then they had better seriously consider bringing back some of the esprit de corps that holds a unit together under duress and makes men proud to say they belong to its ranks.

Tradition plays a real and vital role in making any military unit effective when the chips are down as well as during the intervening years.

When a man signs up for military service on his own, he would like to feel that he is going to be a member of a recognized unit; one that has some history behind it, something he can brag about a little when he is home on leave. Who can brag about the umpeenth Infantry? Or the Eleventy-Fifth Field Artillery? Or the So-and-So Air Division? At least the sailors have some identification with their ships.

The service PIOs are missing a big bet when they fail to dig into their respective unit histories and come up with some interesting glory facts to feed the troops. For if you have to have wars, past unit battle honors can give new men a big boost to their morale

Prior to our Air Force service we spent the war years with the Black Watch of Canada and another Highland regiment. Everyone knows about the Black Watch, the kilties whom the Germans in the first war styled "The Ladies From Hell." We second generation kilties were proud of our regiment because of its past history. ## Truthful Television Ads

By Sylvia Porter

How would you, the American consumer, like to see companies openly criticizing each others' products in their ads and citing facts and figures to demonstrate a competitor's product is defective or unsafe or overpriced - thus giving you unprecedented new ways in which to compare products?

"Why shouldn't a company say 'our competitor's product is lousy and here's why? ' " said a top official of the Federal Trade Commission in a recent interview. "The guy with the really superior product would then be able to make a superior case for his wares instead of just singing jingles.

How would you, a parent, like to see a ban on today's hard-sell TV ads on children's shows which are clearly designed to coax your kids into demanding that you buy a specific product?

How would you, an amateur do-it-yourselfer, like to see warnings of safety hazards clearly spelled out in ads for. say, power tools - just as such warnings appear on product

And how would you, an American woman, react to a regulation forbidding com-

+In New York City, Consumer Affairs Commissioner Bess Myerson is pushing for a citywide regulation forcing manufacturers to keep records to use in substantiating any advertised claims which "appear to be based on objective or clinical evidence" or which "compare the product's effectiveness or safety to that of other brands or products." Commissioner Myerson also has proposed a regulation that would ban theater, movie and book ads from using out-ofcontext words and phrases in ads - if the words distort the opinions of the reviewer. For instance, an ad could not hawk a Broadway show as "beautiful!" if the original review merely noted the "costumes were

The Michigan-Ohio State game was enlivened by a temper tantrum by Woody Hayes, coach of the losers, following Tom Darden's interception on the Michigan 33 that stalled a desperation Buckeye drive.

Hayes stormed onto the fiald claiming interference and was hit with a penalty for unsportsmnlike conduct. He refused to leave until pushed off by his players, almost fighting with one of them.

When the Buckeyes were again nailed for unsportsmanlike conduct, the veteran coach went into a frenzy. He broke the officials' down marker over his knee and hurled the pieces onto first down markers and tore the standards apart. Two assistant coaches finally restrained him.

At any rate, the victory gave Michigan its first unbeaten regular season since 1948.

Penn State, ignored by the Orange and Sugar Bowls despite an undefeated record, settled for the Cotton Bowl and whipping Pitt. "I feel like I've played on two national championship teams-no matter what anybody says," said linebacker Charlie Zapiec, referring to 1969 and this season. "We're the last rated team to get a bowl bid. It makes you kind of mad to know that people think so low of you."

It's Official: Penn State Accepts Cotton Bowl Bid

PITTSBURGH (AP) - It's official-Penn State plays in the Cotton Bowl New Year's Day in Dallas against the Southwest Conference champ, Texas or Arkansas.

The bells of a nearby church had just sounded 6 p.m. Saturday when two Cotton Bowl officials strolled into a local hotel suite occupied by Penn State Ceach Joe Paterno and other university dignitaries.

Under NCAA rules, it would have been illegal for them to contact Penn State before 6 p.m., but the Nittany Lions were expecting company.

Ranked sixth in the nation with a 10-0 record, they had just thrashed Pitt 55-18. When the bid came formally, University President Dr. John W. Oswald was on hand to accept.

"I'm mighty proud of this team I'm mighty proud of this university," said Oswald, seated on a couch beside bowl representative Field Scovell and Paterno.

. We're looking forward to the chance to prove we can handle the Southwest Conference champ," Oswald continued, but that's when Paterno chimed in.

"Wait a minute Dr. Oswald." the cautious coach said with a smile. "I wouldn't go so far as to say we'll 'handle' them . . . Let's just say we hope to play a good football game.'

Despite it's perfect record, Penn State ranks below five teams, apparently

"It makes you mad to know that people think so low of you.' said senior linebacker Chuck Zapiec. "What else are we supposed to do."

As a junior, Zapiec played guard on the 11-0 Penn State team which finished second in the final poll to Texas.

If Texas beats Texas A&M Thanksgiving Day, it will clinch a Cotton Bowl berth. A defeat or a tie for Texas will give Arkansas the spot.

Texas is 7-2 on the season and ranked 12th, while Arkansas is 7-2-1 and ranked 17th.

The Texas-Penn State matchup would seem the more natural attraction, and one Cotton Bowl official confessed, "I hope we can exploit it."

State Clouts Pit(t)iful Panthers

PITTSBURGH (AP) -Burned by the speed of Oklahoma, bruised by the power of Notre Dame, Pitt absorbed a little of both against Penn State Saturday.

The sixth-ranked Nittany Lions, 10-0, pounded over, around and through the Panthers for a 55-18 victory and accepted a Cotton Bowl bid immediately afterward. "They're a great football team," said Pitt Coach Carl De-Pasqua. "What else can I say?" Pitt lost earlier this season to second-ranked Oklahoma, 55-29, and seventh-ranked Notre Dame, 56-7, and DePasqua was asked to compare the teams with Penn State.

"How can I compare?" he re-plied. "We've had our butt kicked by all of them.'

DePasqua had high praise for Penn State halfback Lydell Mitchell, who rushed for 181 yards in 21 carries and scored three touchdowns on runs of 16. 15 and one yards.

"He's the kind of back any coach would love to have," De-Pasqua said.

Mitchell has now extended his season touchdown total to 28, four more than the old NCAA

He also holds the mark for most rushing touchdowns in one season, 26. The old record of 23 was held jointly by Steve Owens Gaiters of New Mexico State in

Penn State took the opening kickoff and marched 84 yards for a touchdown on a 16-yard sweep by Mitchell. Surprisingly, Pitt, 3-7, won the opening toss, but chose to

"I wish Penn State the best of luck," said DePasqua. "I hope with touchdown passes of 52

they go all the way."
"I hope Penn State kicks the hell out of them," said Havern.

The Chargers, whose offense was hurt, when running back Mike Garrett left the game with an ankle injury, dropped to 4-6 in the division.

The Raiders, who beat San Diego 34-0 early in the season, trailed 24-10 at the half but moved to a 34-24 lead late in the final quarter on the passing of 8-5yard scoring drive. Hadl passed 15 yards to Walker Gil-

The Chargers' Chris Fletcher then recovered an onside kickoff at the Raiders' 31 with three minutes left.

A Hadl-to-Gillette pass gave San Diego a first down at the four but two plays later, Hadl was chased toward the right sideline and threw the interception to Conners.

The game ended with Oakland punter Jerry DePoyster taking an intentional safety in his end zone.

credible," sighed Fran Tarkenton. "Somebody doesn't like us. The kids play well, play their hearts out, and then they're not rewarded with a victory."

Tarkenton punctured the Pittsburgh Steelers' secondary for 302 yards passing, completing 27 of 41, but the Steelers still managed to defeat New York, 17-13 Sunday in a National Football League game. The victory, coupled with Cleveland's win over New England, left both teams tied for the Central Division lead in the American Conference.

A 70-yard return of an intercepted pass by John Rowser after a field goal fizzled, kept the Steelers in the game in the first half. Then Preston Pearson dashed 77-yards on the second half kickoff to the Giants 24, setting up the second and winning score.

The field goal attempt, from the Giant 49, appeared at first to be a fake.

"It really looked that way, huh," asked Tarkenton. "Well, it wasn't. The ball was mishandled." A bad pass from center? "I said the ball was mishandled," Tarkenton replied. "He just bobbled the ball." said Giant coach Alex Webster of Tarkenton.

"By the time he threw the ball," said Rowser," the linemen were past me. They thought he had kicked the ball. Then it looked like he just threw the ball for grabs." "It wasn't artistic," said Steeler coach Chuck Noll. "But we won. We were too cautious on defense in the first half, afraid of making mistakes. But I thought we had some semblance of hitting in the second

It was the second straight victory for the Bengals, now 3-7. Houston fell deeper into the division cellar with a 1-8-1 record.

Willis, a 212-pound rookie from Boston College, punched across from one and five yards and piled up 81 in 23 rushes to complement Carter's passing.

The veteran Bengals' quarterback found tight end Bruce Coslet on a six-yard scoring strike and passed to split end Bob Trumpy for 31-yard touchdown. Carter finished with 12 completions in 15 tries for 143 yards. Veteran Charley Johnson came off the bench in the fourth period to provide the Oilers with their only touchdown after rookie Dan Pastorini failed to ignite the Houston offense.

Johnson, an 11-year man, hooked up with Charlie Joiner on a 56-yard bomb with less than four minutes to play.

Houston's only previous scoring was field goals of 37 and 26 yards by mark Moseley.

Drought In Kenya Kills Elephants, May Hurt Crops

(c) N.Y. Times News Service NAIROBI, Kenya-Drought is killing hundreds of elephants in Kenya and threatening to bring a renewal of the human suffering and agricultural losses suffered earlier this year in the East African nation.

The elephants are dying in the southeastern portion of Tsavo Park. David Sheldrick, a National Parks warden in the area, said the final death toll may exceed 1,000 of the animals.

In the worst affected area of the park there has been no rain since July and only 6.17 inches all year, about one third the normal fall.

Elsewhere in Kenya, the annual autumn or "short" rainy season has come late. If the short rains fail again as they did lest year, human suffering in this country of about 10 million

Following poor rains in the autumn of 1970, drought was widespread in much of Kenya early this year. Large numbers of livestock owned by pastoral and nomadic tribes in the arid northern areas died. A famine relief program prevented any serious human starvation but tribesmen malnourished and destitute.

In much of the country, the "long" or spring rains were reasonably good and brought relief. The harvest of food crops was reduced, however, bringing an annoying shortage of the staple food, maize meal.

East African meteorological department reported recently that the short rains were off to a bad start with most of Kenya getting rainfall much below average for October. The first half of November has also been disappointingly dry.

A provincial agricultural officer predicted that some newly planted crops would fail to germinate if good rains do not come soon. Kenya's prosperous dairy industry may also suffer a loss of milk production.

The nomadic tribes of the north have smaller herds as a result of the previous drought and may therefore face an even harder time early next year if grass again burns to an un-nutritious stubble in the hot sun. The elephant losses in Tsavo Park may cause renewed debate on the controversial question of control shooting or culling of the herds.

The park lies about halfway between Nairobi and Mombasa, and with about 8000 square miles of area is one of the largest national parks in the world.

The elephant herds which move in and out of the park are the largest remaining on earth. The number of elephants have been estimated at from 20,000 to 35,000-although all are not in the park at a given time.

Park officials said that the sudden increase in deaths had confined to the southeastern portion of the park. The elephants are not dying of thirst but of malnutrition because they have seriously depleted nutritious vegetation near water holes. The drought-affected vegetation now has little food value and elephants are starving even though they have full stomachs.

Sheldrick said that most victims are "old cows and young calves." He said, "We shall never know how many calves have died," because vultures and other scavangers make short work of the smaller carcasses.

Kenya weather is roughly cyclical and such drought tend to come at about ten year intervals. In the last drought large numbers of rhinos died in

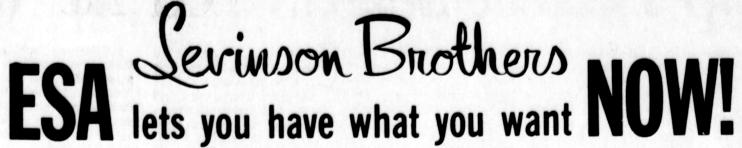

In the 1960-61 drought, elephants fared well because they could reach food on high branches that the rhinos could not. But in recent years elephants have, for reasons not entirely clear to scientists, been pushing over, debarking and otherwise destroying large areas of woody vegetation in Tsavo and in other parts of East

Because of this "elephant damage" some wildlife experts and scientists believe that controlled shooting or cropping of herds should be done to reduce ecological change wrought by elephants. Uganda has accepted such suggestions and plans to undertake a large shooting program in Murchison Falls National Park.

Kenya and Tanzania wildlife officials have opposed cropping in parks and tend to believe it is better to let natural causes regulate elephant numbers.

Dr. Phil Glover of the Tsavo research project told a local newspaper: "The drought, as one would expect, is killing off the old, the young and the sick. It is allowing the elephants to find their right level of num-

Demo. Convention May Refuse To Seat Pa. Delegation In '72

Democratic National conention next summer may efuse to seat Pennsylvania's lelegation unless the state egislature adopts a key election eform measure, according to Democratic state chairman John Scales.

And whether that measure is ever adopted, Gov. Shapp faces test of his own political strength as he attempts to lead a united delegation to the convention, observers in Harrisburg agree.

The reform measure, which Shapp has endorsed, would place the names of presidential candidates on the primary ballot. The measure also would commit delegates elected in Pennsylvania's primary next spring to vote for a definite candidate at convention time.

The national committee has instructed state committees to implement interparty reforms and to "make every feasible effort" to implement those which require changes in state

Despite Scales' warning, State Rep. Harry R. J. Comer of Philadelphia, whose House committee on State Govern-

"There's not a snowball's chance in hell of that happening," Comer says.

Scales disagrees. "I think its a realistic possibility. I can't think of a state that was just knocked out. But this is the first time the rules have been changed so drastically."

The measure, designed to meet Democratic National Committee guidelines, would require that 75 per cent of the 182 Pennsylvania delegates be elected in next year's primary election, in addition to requiring them to run as committed to specific presidential hopefuls. In the past individuals running for delegate positions were not identified as committed to a Comer said the proposal will be considered during the week of Nov. 29. The bill, he predicted, will be reported for floor action, but is likely to undergo certain changes.

This situation guaranteed control by the party organization, which invariably turned out enough votes to elect delegates who obeyed the party leaders.

Binding delegates to specific candidates, as the legislation proposes, would dilute the power of party leaders and give the public more direct control. Gov. Shapp, who bucked the party organization last year to win the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, faces his first test of strength when he tries to

Steel Looks For Better Profit Early In 1972

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) -The steel industry continues to look to next year's first quarter as the time when business will recover sufficiently to improve profitability, Industry Week said today.

But, the business weekly said, steel ordering for January is still too light to determine whether strong sales will develop early or late in the quarter.

It noted that higher profits will be hard to make under the 2.5 per cent price increase guidelines and the rule that higher prices cannot be used to increase a company's margin of profit. This means, the magazine said, that about the only way companies will be able to boost earnings is by raising their business volume.

Profits would rise about 15 per cent in a recovery year such as 1972 is expected to be, Industry Week said. But industry fears such a gain will be hard to attain with profit margins

The magazine said demand for late-year delivery of steel continues to edge upward.

State Crime Commission To Check Police Corruption

PHILADELPHIA (AP) - A special grand jury probing narcotics traffic in Philadelphia will turn its full attention to possible police corruption starting Monday, Dist. Atty. Arlen Specter has announced.

Specter disclosed at a press conference Saturday the jury will seek to learn if some gambling figures are using profits from narcotics sales to pay off policemen.

"Is there a connection between the gambling procedures and the drug traffic?" Specter asked the newsmen. "I don't know. That's what we want the investigation to find out."

The district attorney said the jury's decision was based on the arrest Friday of a gambling figure and four present or dismissed policemen. Three of the officers were charged with narcotics offenses and accepting bribes from gambling figures.

Specter also suggested for the first time that the taking of the graft may extend beyond the police department and involve other public officials.

"When I say official corruption," the district attorney explained, "I am not limiting it to police-it may be that there are

The district attorney's disclosure came as he announced the arrest Friday of a husband and wife and seizure of what he said was an estimated $630,000 worth of heroin.

The raid marked the largest confiscation of heroin in the history of the district attorney's office, Specter said.

Specter earlier disclosed that two more Philadelphia policemen had been ordered to appear Monday before the grand jury, but he declined to identify the

"We have a number of fresh leads in the area of police corruption," Specter said, attributing the leads to information offered by the public.

Public interest, he said, had produced so many leads that his staff had to work over the weekend. "Saturday was an extraordinary session" he said. Much interest, Specter

Family Too Small For A Turkey? Try Roasted Rock Cornish Game Hens

ROASTED ROCK CORNISH GAME HENS stuffed with parsley-chive dressing

PARTY MENU Roasted Rock Cornish Game

Parsley-Chive Stuffing Baked Potatoes Julienne Carrots Perfection Salad Apple Pie Beverage

Rock Cornish game hens are delightfully easy and tasty for dinner parties. Contrary to popular opinion, they can offer a new flavor treat for conversation and acclaim. Parsleychive stuffing is an example. The flavor is mild, fresh-tasting and just plain good. If the men don't know it has parsley in it, they'll just love it. While dried or frozen herbs are good, they are not as strong as those that are fresh. This recipe was developed with fresh parsley chives. Keep the birds refrigerated at all times after they have been thawed except when they are being cooked or

Some people prefer to cut the Rock Cornish game hens in two before roasting. They are faster to cook and easier to carve. In this case, the stuffing is either baked separately or the birds are cooked skin side down until the inside of the cavity is browned. Mounds of stuffing are placed in the pan with the hens baked skin side up on the dressing. This makes for quick and easy service and the game hens do flavor the stuffing. Either method is attractive and delicious. The birds with the keel bones (breastbones) removed are easier to stuff and

What about nutrition? Rock Cornish game hens are young birds and therefore are low in fat but high in protein and phosphorus. Because these birds are young, care must be taken not to overcook them. Poultry that is overcooked becomes tough and flavorless. The best way to tell when they are cooked is to stick a fork into the thickest part of the thighs and catch the juices with a white paper towel. If they are not pink, the Rock Cornish game hens are ready to serve. There are those who complain about the seemingly in-separable combination of Rock Cornish game hens and rice. Therefore, we'll served baked or scalloped potatoes, julienne carrots, perfection salad and apple pie. Who could resist a meal like that? The meal is so easy to prepare, a homemaker would certainly be the last one to utter a negative sound.

Try a variety of flavorings when making stuffings. They make entirely new dishes. Fruit, gingersnap, curry or vegetable stuffings are just a few possibilities that you might like to investigate.

Some years later, the club moved its meeting place to the Woman's Club, where it currently holds

Ann Landers

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Recently I admitted defeat and turned my 28-year-old husband over to his 18-year-old girl friend. For a while I was miserable and bitter. Now I see things in a different light. Enclosed is my thank-you letter to her. She will probably laugh it off, but it might help some other woman who is faced with the agony I just went through.

Dear Friend:

A few months ago I hated you because I was sure you ruined my life. Now I want to thank you for liberating me from hell. You have given me a second chance at happiness. I need no longer rush home from work to prepare supper—in case he decided to come home, which he usually didn't. I need no longer dread going to a public place in the evening with my sister, a co-worker or a friend, for fear of running into you and my husband, which happened too many times. Now I can stop feeling guilty and inferior, blaming myself for failing as a wife, because I realize it was he who failed as a husband. I tried to make our marriage work. He didn't.

So thank you, dear friend. And good luck with the burn. You're going to need it.—OUTSVILLE AND GLAD

DEAR OUT: Here is your Freedom Song. I'm sure you feel better for having written it. I wonder how many women out there will think it was intended for them?

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My wife called my attention to your reply to "Mr. From Plumfield" in which you stated,, with reference to garbage collectors, "Today's title is 'Sanitation

Please be advised that "Sanitation Engineer" is a professional who utilizes science and technology in planning and operating systems for the maintenance and improvement of environmental sanitation. A Sanitation Engineer spends anywhere from four to ten years of his life in a university and should not be confused with a person who collects garbage.

I am enclosing a brochure describing a study program which must be followed in order to obtain a doctorate in the fields of environmental engineering. — S.E.E., P.E., Ph.D.—TULANE UNIVERSITY

DEAR DR. S: I stand corrected. Several sanitation engineers wrote to set me straight. (Also a few garbage collectors wrote to say thanks.)

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My sister Arleen is 31. She was married for eight years and finally had a baby at age 27. Arleen decided last year to divorce her husband for doing her wrong (which he surely did.) She works downtown and lives with us—Mom, Dad and me. Arleen dated very little at first, but now she has a steady fellow.

The problem is that I feel sorry for my folks. They waited 32 years to be free of kids and responsibilities, and now they are like raising Arleen's little girl. I think it is very unfair. The folks never go out weekends anymore because they have to babysit.

Should I say something to Arleen?—FAMILY TROUBLE IN

NASHVILLE

DEAR FAM: No. If your mom and dad feel imposed on,

THEY should say something to Arleen. Since she is working, she can pay a sitter one evening a week (or more)—and you can help out now and then as a favor to your folks.

If you have trouble getting along with your parents. . . if you can't get them to let you live your own life, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Bugged By Parents? How To Get More Freedom." Send 50 cents in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Though traditional foods do make Thanksgiving a special and unique celebration, there's still opportunity to add your own culinary creativity to the season's favorite fare.

Stuffing the turkey with a different dressing, serving the pumpkin pie in chiffon style and adding new ingredients and flavors to the vegetable dish can make the dinner more fun for you to prepare and for the family to eat.

Sweet potatoes have been on Thanksgiving menus since the Pilgrims and the Indians held the first celebration of this holiday over 300 years ago. The importers who pitted and diced dates suggest you try an appetizing variation of this SWEET POTATO CARAMEL Casserole ½ cup evaporated milk 1 egg

Is World Economic Crisis Urgent?

took, had predicted much more

There is, obviously, much wailing and gnashing of teeth abroad, and some genuine bitterness about the United States. The American import

surcharge has presumably hurt turmoil than happened.

By EDWIN L. DALE JR (c) N.Y. Times News Service WASHINGTON - Is there - and should there be - a sense of urgency in the United States government about reaching agreement with other countries aimed at ending the present, unfamiliar world monetary uncertainty and removal of the U.S. import surcharge?

Assuming there were a sense of urgency, is it really up to the United States to take the first move? And what should that move be?

The questions are hardly novel. They are raised here to illustrate some points about modern government and its decision-making. One point, with not too much oversimplification, is this:

The men of government who are mulling over these questions, and sometimes clashing over the answers, are more acutely aware of the difficulty of arriving at the right answers than the outsiders, including those in the press, who think they know.

This is not because the men of government are brighter. It is only because an inexorable process - including contact with Congress and foreign governments- brings them more rapid awareness of what is wrong with any answer or solution.

There is another relevant point. In one sense the government men and the outsiders are together. Knowingly or unknowingly, they base nearly all arguments, or fears, on predictions of the unknown.

"Trade war." "Grave risks of shrinkage of trade and reduction in normal international transactions." "I see no prospect of retaliation." "Catastrophe in our relations with Japan." "Blunderbuss program that may blow up in our face." "Time is on nobody's side." "A weak United States will be isolationist." "Our relations with Latin America and Canada are in shambles.'

These recent quotations come from such men, not in order, as President Nixon; Frank Southard, Deputy Director of the International Monetary Fund; Edwin O. Reischauer, former Ambassador to Japan; Secretary of The Treasury John B. Connally; Arthur F. Burns, Chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, and Carl Albert, Speaker of The House of Representatives. They are all, necessarily, based on judgments and predictions more than on facts.

We are now three months into the new international monetary world created by Nixon's bombshells of Aug. 15. These are the main facts to DATE:

-Since early October, exchange rates among the leading countries have been amazingly stable, despite presumed 'floating." "Central bank intervention in some other countries is part of the explanation, but this is probably not as large or widespread as commonly believed. Exchange rates are, of course, altered from earlier this year.

-Both the Eurodollar and Eurobond markets are functioning normally, both with lower interest rates than before the President's decisions.

-The number of new restrictions, on trade and inexchange of ternational currencies, been remarkably small. A Danish import surcharge does not make a trade war. A Dutch decision to bar foreign purchase of certain bonds does not mean a world of exchange restrictions. New and ingenious use of exchange controls by Japan and France simply means that these countries are doing what comes

-The European Common Market has flown apart once again, but has managed to keep its name and its image.

-Evidence on actual "disruption" of trade or investment is scanty, although concessions because of his fear for U.S. foreign relations. If he does, and there is no current evidence that he will, there will remain the danger raised by Connally that the world will soon be in a "dollar crisis" all over again - which is based on vet another prediction.

And what about this item? For reasons that mainly predate the Nixon bombshell, some industrial countries may be facing recessions and some poor countries are definitely experiencing low commodity prices. What is the President to do when everyone in the world blames all troubles on the United States? It is entirely possible that U.S. foreign relations - a vague term in any

Taking into consideration the promoted value of your holding in partner's suits this hand is the equivalent of a sound opening bid and should produce a good play for game. Choosing between a jump to three clubs or a jump to two no trump our preference is for the as the shorter route to

Q. 2-Neither vulnerable, as as South you hold:

♠1075 ♥9 ♦ A 983 ♣KJ1095 The bidding has proceeded: East South West Pass 1 NT Pass Pass

What do you bid now? A .- Three diamonds. This hand increased considerably in value when partner made a jump shift in clubs and an immediate raise to five clubs does not quite compensate for the negative sound of your original response. A tem-porizing call in diamonds followed by a club jump may place partner in position to bid a slam.

Q. 3-East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:

▲K63 ♥954 ♦ Q83 ♣AJ107 The bidding has proceeded: South West North East Pass Pass 1 ♦ Pass 1 NT Pass Pass Dble.

What do you bid now? A .- Redouble. This will inform your partner that you had a maximum no trump [10 points], and will establish a cooperative situation for doubling the opponents if partner's opening was sound and they begin to rescue

What do you bid now? A .- Five clubs. It is tempting to go directly to six, but there is a slight danger that you may be off two aces. The leap to five should induce partner to go to slam if his suits are headed by high honors.

What do you bid now A .- Five diamends. With this holding you have no desire to play three no trump and four spades may prove too difficult to manage. Your trump suit is practically self-sufficient and there may prove to be an advantage in protecting the king of hearts from the opening lead.

How to Keep Well

LIVING WITH ANXIETY

Tension and anxiety can be controled without relying on pills, physicians or excuses. The best and most lasting results are obtained when the person learns to solve problems through developing emotional balance.

Begin by accepting the fact that some tension is normal. The hermit does not live; he vegetates. To satisfy basic needs for food, protection from the elements, reproduction and accomplishments, we must live somewhere, contact people and work. It is difficult to do this without having moments of anxiety, anger, depression and discouragement. No normal person can be oblivious to care, pain or the conflicts of everyday living.

How do you learn to roll with the punches — the jolts and dissatisfactions of life? The next time things go wrong, take stock of what is happening instead of going into a tailspin. Make an honest effort to work out problems by yourself but, if you cannot see the trees for the forest, you may need help. In such instances, regard tranquilizers as a temporary respite from the immediate

Be sure to maintain flexibility. At this stage, you are thinking things over and are deciding whether to fight, flee, or endure. Outside advice may be necessary. Or blow off steam. No harm in either, but pick the right place and the right listener when releasing the safety valve.

The person who realizes his own strengths and weaknesses derives satisfaction from knowing where he stands on most issues. He will not always expect rewards and can take failures. He knows why he feels blue, angry, tired or unhappy. He does not avoid particular problems; he solves them.

Pregnancy and Hypertension Mrs. J. D. writes: Would it be dangerous for a woman with essential hypertension to become pregnant?

REPLY Pregnancy aggravates an elevated pressure but the condition can be maintained at safe levels through diet and medication. The experience is trying because the expectant woman must see her physician at frequent intervals. These visits enable him to detect sudden weight gain, dropsy, albumin in the urine or an increase in the blood pressure. Bed rest and even hospitalization often are necessary. Send stamped, self-addressed envelope for our leaflet on hypertension.

A person who treats himself has a fool for a doctor. Never monkey with moles. Consult your physician and tell him what you have done.

Exercises at 55

C. F. writes: Is it safe for a 55-year-old woman to start a program of limbering up exercises?

Director Resigns

Historical Society

HARRISBURG -- The Pennsylvania Historical and Museum Commission, in session here today, "regret-fully" accepted an an-nouncement by Dr. S. K. Stevens that he planned to retire as Executive Director of the State agency at the end of January, 1972.

Dr. Stevens, who has served in that post since 1956, will be ending 34 years of service to the Commonwealth, a career that began in 1937 when he arrived in Harrisburg from the Penn-sylvania State University -where he was a member of the History faculty -- to assume the position of State Historian with the old Pennsylvania Historical Commission.

In announcing his retirement to Chairman James B. Stevenson, of Titusville, Pa., and the 14-member Con-mission, Dr. Stevens said he had no definite plans for the future, but would continue his research and writing. He is the author of many books on American and Pennsylvania history.including the award-winning Pennsylvania: Birthplace of a Nation, published by Random House in
